Sarah Davis Inaugurates Newsletter

A big big deal

Sarah Davis announces today her inaugural newsletter.

Beginning on August 8th, 2019, her 27th ½ birthday, the newsletter joins a milieu of half-assed creative endeavors that have characterized Davis's writing career and marks a significant step in the expansion of the audience for these follies. Since her founding in 1992, and ability to write since about 1996, Davis has developed a dynamic literary range including short stories, really kick-ass timed essays on the practice AP Composition tests, and several blogs.

The newsletter will be a multifaceted exploration of various ideas and themes ranging from general quotidian musings to deep dives into esoteric topics including, but not limited to, very specific types of music, Antarctica, and drooling.

Because Davis has not specified a rigid timeline or frequency of newsletters, she is free to get as general or specific as she pleases. Davis has a backlog of writings that are unrelated to one another, but in her mind, worthy of sharing. Whether or not Davis is a reliable judge of worthiness lies yet to be determined.

When asked for comment about feedback from her peers, Davis said, “Everyone’s like ‘Oh, are you going to include images? Be sure to include images! People love images.’ Hop off my dick, you know?”

This was the first image that came up when we did a Google Image search for “image.”

At this point in the press release, the function of the text is really just to take up space. Words words words, taking up space. If you’ve made it this far, wow. Thank you. Great to see you here! You are probably a true friend, a real ride or die, and/or one of Davis’s parents.

The Sarah Davis Newsletter will continue thus forth at a moderate pace for the indeterminate future. To sign up, please contact Sarah Davis at sarahtheresadavis@gmail.com.
